What deserves the investment?

PMM + Product / Bring the customer problem, commercial evidence, and release context.

The audience and their job

Who values this, and what are they trying to accomplish?

The change and the buying reason

What becomes possible or easier? Why would they choose, expand, renew, or adopt?

Evidence and actual alternatives

Customer, deal, usage, or market signals. What would they do without us?

Provisional tier and the reason

P0 / Scream · P1 / Shout · P2 / Cheer · P3 / Whisper. What would change our mind?

What belongs together?

Map one possible collection. Keep the connected customer outcome in view.

One audience. One job. One stronger outcome.

Write the collection headline without listing features.

Release / capability	Availability / cohort	Dependency / contribution

Group, separate, or investigate?

Does the combined outcome earn a higher tier? Which part can we remove? What if one part slips?

Who needs what, and when?

Availability, customer understanding, and market attention can move on different dates.

Administrators and support

What must they prepare before access, setup, permissions, or responsibilities change?

Eligible users

When can they use it? What guidance gets them to the first valuable outcome?

Account buyers and the field

What changes the commercial conversation? What is included, paid, or still planned?

The wider market

What is the connected story? Which availability and proof conditions set the moment?

Agree the decision. Make it reviewable.

Leave with owners, evidence gaps, and a reason to revisit the plan.

Our decision

Tier, collection or individual path, key dates, and any override of the diagnostic.

Readiness and proof still to resolve

Capability, availability, pricing, claims, dependencies, and customer preparation.

Owners and review trigger

Who decides? Who does what? Which change would reopen the decision?

What will tell us the value landed?

First value, repeat use, commercial goal, baseline, and an appropriate review window.

Close the loop: explain one thing you chose not to do, and where that time or budget will go instead. Use page 14 of the playbook as the quick decision guide.

Agree how the teams work together.

Set up the Product–PMM handoff. Revisit when the process changes.

Trigger and shared record

Which customer-facing changes need a heads-up? When and where does PMM hear?

Product input and change alerts

Job, scope, access, availability, dependencies, limits, owner. Who flags changes?

Audience owners and decision authority

Who owns customer guidance, field readiness, market communication, and proceed / narrow / delay?

Minimum release standard

For facts, affected audiences, route to value, and review: name the owner, action, or reason no change is needed.

Did the value land?

Choose one eligible cohort and a review window that fits the job.

Cohort, window, and source of evidence

Keep the audience and measurement window consistent. Note access exclusions.

What changes next?

Separate access, reach, clarity, product friction, and recurring need. Name the decision and commercial measure to review.

Exposure is not proof of understanding. Repeat use should follow the natural cadence of the job, not an arbitrary daily target.
